Wireframe Narrative for
Church Musician Services
Prepared by Gregory Merklin
12 April 2017

The home page is depicted in the first wireframe. The user will see the business's wordmark, and directly beneath that are navigation links to other pages on the website. Also nearby are icons linking to the business's social media sites. A footer shows copyright and e-mail contact information.

Clicking on the 'services' link brings the user to the services page, a typical sub-page in the website as depicted in the second wireframe. Here information is available about the business. (For this particular page, links in the text will allow the user to visit relating to qualifications and previous clients of the business.) The logo is reduced to a lettermark, and it, the navigation information, and social media links are across the top of the page.

If the user desires to submit contact information to the business, s/he would click on the "contact" link, bringing the user to the contacts page, a typical "forms" page as shown in the third wireframe. The actual form will be provisioned through a third party, such as Google Forms. Upon filling out the required fields, the user would click the "submit" button to send the information on its way. As with the previous wireframe, the lettermark and navigation bar are across the top of the page.
